SERVICE HISTORY

1993 TVR Chimaera, If ever a motor manufacturer built a Hairy Chested Sportscar it was TVR when it launched its most successful car, the Chimaera. The grunt the sound the get up and go. Heavy steering, heavy gearbox. A car undoubtedly built for serious driving in mind and a car that delighted in being taken by the scruff of the neck and driven hard all day long. Fabulous. And then there's the noise. No other car on British Roads sounds like a TVR. It's worth buying the car for the noise it makes if nothing else. This car delights in every way. Its finished in a gorgeous Blue Mica Metallic with Grey Hide interior. The Gunmetal alloys are almost unmarked and the car is fitted with the most delightfully discreet Carbon Fibre trim. It really sets the car off and with the high performance driving lights, it's a Chimaera with an ever so slight difference. There is a considerable service history with the car going back to 1996. This is a car that's always had a good home. The paintwork gleams...
